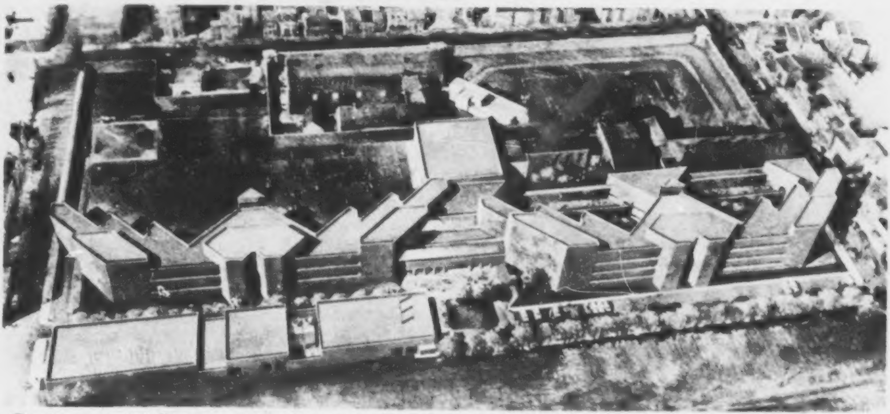
ECSI

Architects & Engineers for Trenton State Prison selected ECSI to supply the security management control system for the facility.



Artist's rendering of the Rehabilitation of Trenton State Prison
Architects: Gruzen & Partners/ The Grad Partnership
Engineers: Kallen & Lemelson

Environmental Conservation Systems Inc. was selected by the architects and engineers of the Trenton State Prison project to provide the total security management control system for the facility. ECSI supplied both the analytical programming and the electronically monitored control system required by the New Jersey Department of Corrections.

The Total Building Control System incorporates consoles, door access, patrol tour, duress alarms, intercom, public address and monitoring, as well as CCTV surveillance and data storage. The ECSI system interfaces with smoke, fume and fire detection, elevator and H.V.A.C. subsystems, thus ensuring the facility's total building monitoring and control.

This system was designed to provide an open but secure environment for the inmates while achieving maximum safety for the staff. ECSI has designed and/or manufactured management control systems for some of the most modern institutions in the U.S. and can assist you and your staff in designing a system to meet your specific operational requirements—at the lowest possible cost. FOREWORD

The American Correctional Association proudly presents the 42nd edition of the Directory of Juvenile and Adult Correctional Departments, Institutions, Agencies and Paroling Authorities. This informational directory is one in a series of three published by the ACA. Also available is the National Jail and Adult Detention Directory, which provides vital information on the nation's jails and detention centers, and the recently published first edition of the Probation and Parole Directory, which contains information on federal, state and county adult and juvenile probation, parole and aftercare services in the United States and Canada. Together, these three directories provide a pertinent and comprehensive guide to the entire correctional system.

Association members, as well as public and private organizations and manufacturers, will find this 1982 directory an essential ready-reference document providing data on approximately 1,600 institutions and more than 3,500 personnel involved in correctional service in the United States and Canada.

The statistical summaries have proven to be an extremely valuable source for research. In some instances, the editor had to interpret or combine the information provided. For detailed, specific information beyond that provided in the summaries, please contact the individual state.

Because of the volatility of corrections and the political influences that have major effects on personnel, it is impossible for the directory to be completely accurate by the time it is published. Every effort is made by the ACA staff to keep the directory current between editions. Please do not hesitate to call the Association's headquarters if you need information. We also welcome user comments on improving any aspect of this directory.

To the participating adult and juvenile correctional officials and staff who annually provide the essential information necessary for timely publication, the Association extends special thanks. It is only through a generous spirit of cooperation and professional concern that this important directory is possible.

November 1981

Anthony P. Travisono
Executive Director

Note

Information in this directory is requested as of July 1, 1981; however, correctional information is constantly changing. When important, new information is known to us prior to publication date, every effort is made to include it.

MEETINGS OF THE AMERICAN CORRECTIONAL ASSOCIATION

Each year the ACA hosts a Congress of Correction and a Midwinter Conference. These meetings provide an opportunity for delegates to informally discuss recent developments and concerns in corrections, attend intensive workshops and seminars, and view a variety of commercial exhibits representing products and services necessary to the management of corrections. Membership in the Association is not a requirement for participation at these conferences. The entire correctional field, as well as citizens interested in the criminal justice system, are invited and encouraged to attend.

The goals and objectives of the Congress and Midwinter Conference include providing formal public forums whereby problems can be addressed and dealt with in a positive, proactive manner, encouraging professional growth and enrichment through both dialogue and technical training, and responding to a variety of issues as they relate to all aspects of the Association's membership. Participation at these conferences is an excellent way to support your professional organization and to experience the unity of the common bond fostered during the meeting weeks.

Future Congress dates are as follows:

1982 — Toronto, Ontario, Canada	August 15-19
1983 — Chicago, Illinois	August 7-11
1984 — San Antonio, Texas	August 19-23

For further information, please contact Marge L. Restivo, Manager, Congress/Committee/Advertising Division, (301) 699-7600.

DIRECTORY USER'S GUIDE

The 1982 edition Directory includes an organizational description of the adult and juvenile correctional system for each state, territory, the federal government, and Canada. While local services and agencies are not included, the fact that such services exist will be indicated in the narrative portion.

Within the section for each state, four main categories of adult and juvenile services—Institutions, Parole Boards, Parole Services, and Probation Services—include information which explains the organization of specific services. This data should assist the user in understanding the total organizational and administrative structure of correctional services in any given jurisdiction.

In cases where updated information was not available, data from last year's edition has been repeated. Every effort has been made to ensure accuracy and completeness; however, the Association cannot assume responsibility for errors or omissions.

The statistical summaries in the Directory include vital information often sought by professionals and the public. Cost of care and number of employees for individual facilities have been updated. Cost of care figures differ according to the fiscal data provided by individual state correctional systems, i.e., figures were calculated on a per inmate/per day, per inmate/per year, or system wide basis for FY 1981.

Changes or new information to be included in future editions of the Directory should be forwarded to the AMERICAN CORRECTIONAL ASSOCIATION, 4321 Hartwick Road, Suite L-208, College Park, Maryland 20740. Comments or suggestions for improvement are welcome.

We have attempted to collect data using the above definition. This information should not be considered authoritative and is provided as a step to narrow the definition in order to make useful comparisons in the future.

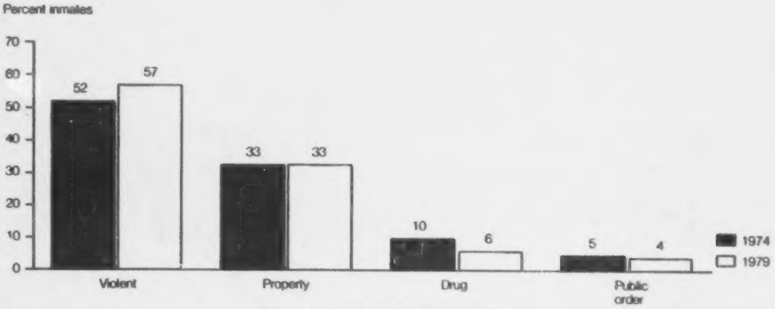
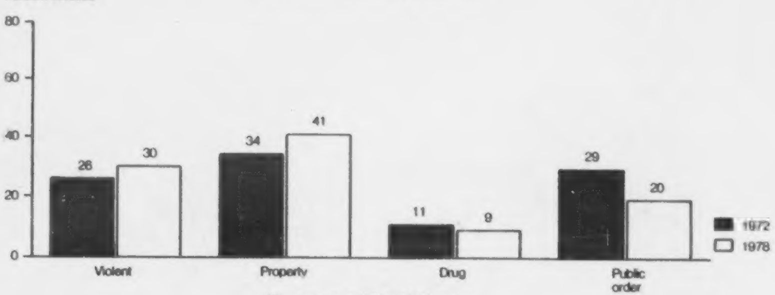
Prisons and jails house an increasing proportion of violent offenders



Offense characteristics of prison inmates



Offense characteristics of jail inmates

Jails, which are used for persons awaiting trial and those sentenced for short periods of time for less serious offenses, increased their share of violent offenders from 26 to 30 percent between 1972 and 1978.

Prisons increased their proportion of violent offenders from 52 to 57 percent from 1974 to 1979.

Black inmates in prisons and jails are more likely than whites to have been incarcerated for violent crimes and less likely to have been incarcerated for property crimes.

Percent of inmates in prisons and in jails

Blacks comprise about half of the inmates in prisons and jails, roughly four times their share of the general population.

Only one in 20 inmates is a woman, although women comprise 51 percent of the general population.

Two-thirds of all prison and jail inmates are between ages 18 and 30, roughly three times this group's share of the general population.

Hispanics—numbering one in 16 in the general population—account for one in 10 inmates of prisons and jails. Their numbers in prison doubled between 1974 and 1979.

ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION

In Alabama adult institutions come under the State Department of Corrections; juvenile institutions come under the Department of Youth Services.

The State Board of Pardons and Paroles paroles adults and provides a statewide system for adult probation and parole services.

Release dates for juveniles are determined by the Juvenile Court having original jurisdiction over them. The Court also provides probation and parole services for them along with those provided by the State (probation only). There is no parole board for juveniles.

ADULT INSTITUTIONS

Persons of the age 16 or over who are convicted of a felony are committed to the State Board of Corrections for a minimum sentence of one year and one day. Youthful offenders (under the Youthful Offender Act) are also committed to the State Board.

JUVENILE INSTITUTIONS

The Department of Youth Services was set up to provide complete responsibility for the juvenile training schools. It is independent of other state agencies and its Director reports to an 18-member Board which is appointed by the Governor.

The Department provides consultative services for community-based programs and helps establish standards and licensing procedures for these programs and their personnel. It also establishes standards for certification of probation officers and subsidizes County Probation Departments so that, in this way, juvenile probation is provided by the State financially (50%) and by the Counties (actual manpower).

JUVENILE INSTITUTIONS AND SERVICES

The Division of Youth Services is a state agency vested with the responsibility of providing comprehensive services to all youth under age 18 who are adjudicated delinquents, juveniles-in-need of supervision (status offenders) and youth-at-risk (youth who exhibit behavior that is likely to result in contact with the juvenile justice system). These services are available through a statewide system of contracted community-based programs and through two minimum security Youth Services Centers and one secure Intensive Treatment Unit.

The goal of the Division is to provide a statewide system of services for youth which will be made available in the least restrictive environment and will aim to reduce and/or prevent the occurrence or recurrence of delinquent behavior and institutionalization. The Division has contracts with twenty three (23) community-based programs to provide diagnosis and evaluation services, individual and family counseling, and substitute care and casework for youth within their own environment.

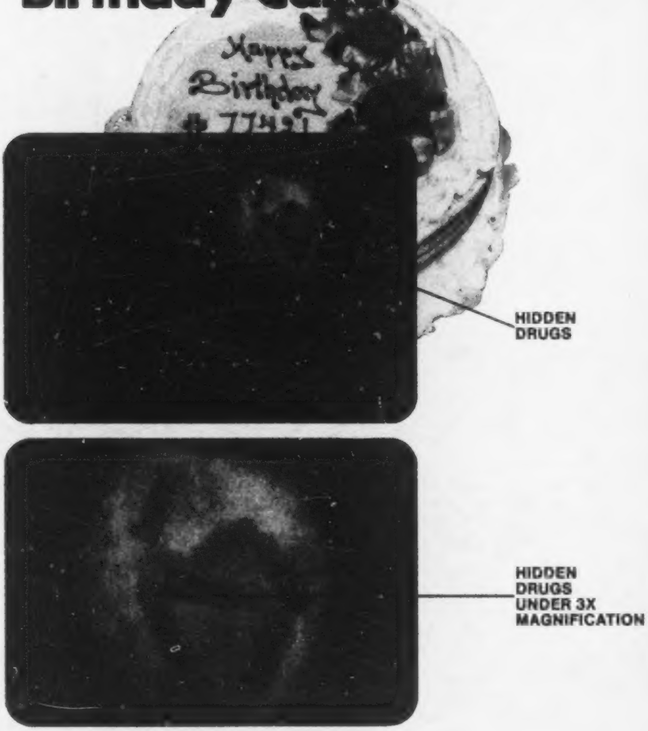
Shows you the "Bennies" in 77421's Birthday Cake.



Happy Birthday # 77421

There'll be no high times at 77421's birthday party tonight. That's because the Philips Dynafluor XI spotted the "bennies" in his birthday cake.

It'll also show "snow" in a shopping bag or "mary jane" in the mail. Fact is, any drug that can be injected, popped, smoked or snorted can be seen by this revolutionary, low-dose X-ray inspection system.

The Dynafluor XI is the only low-dose X-ray system with dual magnification and adjustable contrast for drug spotting capability. A handy joy stick allows you to scan the entire image, and a simple turn of the stick provides added magnification that'll make a nickel bag stand out like a 10 pound sack.

Dynafluor brings the best of both worlds to X-ray inspection. The Dynafluor XI images handguns, knives, files and other potential threats, and the choice of magnification and/or variable contrast allows you to spot concealed drugs. You get low dosage, ideal penetration and optimum contrast for nondestructive inspection of the broadest variety of items from mail to foodstuffs.

Let the Philips Dynafluor XI help you stop drugs from infiltrating your institution. Call or write for a demonstration or a copy of our informative brochure.

KEEP'EM IN WITH PERIM ALERT®

Perimeter Protection System

• Total Security • Instant Detection • Adjustable Sensitivity • Cost Effective

In today's world, an ordinary chain-link fence by itself can not be relied upon for true perimeter protection. Nor can guards be everywhere at once. But, with Perim-Alert you convert your chain-link fence into a true security system that will instantly detect and locate anyone tampering or climbing your fence line.

Only Perim-Alert offers the combined capability to both precisely adjust fence line sensor sensitivity and program each zone of the Computerized Alarm Monitor. This means you can virtually tune the system to your fence and filter out false alarms—without compromising detection.

Whether it be a few hundred feet or several miles, Perim-Alert is the most cost effective electronic security solution for alarming your fence.

Write or call for new Perim-Alert facts and complete brochure.

UNITED STATES PAROLE COMMISSION

The U.S. Parole Commission consists of nine Commissioners appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. They serve six-year terms and may be reappointed for an additional term. One Commissioner is designated by the President as chairman.

The Commission operates from five regional offices, each headed by a Commissioner. Three of the remaining Commissioners make up a National Appeals Board in Washington, D.C.

The Commission has sole authority to order release on parole for any Federal prisoner who is eligible, subject to conditions imposed by the Commission. Failure to abide by such conditions, or commission of a crime while on parole, may result in a parolee's return to custody to serve all or part of the time remaining on the original sentence.

The Commission has parole hearing examiners who travel in pairs to each Federal prison bi-monthly. Based on a study of the prisoner's file and a personal interview, the examiner panel makes a parole recommendation. Guidelines for the examiners are based on calculation of the risk of the prisoner committing a crime again and the severity of his or her offense.

Examiners also conduct revocation hearings for alleged violators. The panel's recommendations are subject to review and modification by the Commission.

Prisoners also have a right to a two-stage appeal: first to the Regional Commissioner and then to the National Appeals Board.

Field supervision of parolees is provided by the U.S. Probation Officers attached to District Courts.

Under the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 and the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, the Commission also is responsible for determining whether a person guilty of certain law violations may serve as an organized labor official, or a management official in the labor field, or an employee of an employee benefit plan.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

As with most publications this first edition of the American Correctional Association's Probation and Parole Directory is the result of a community effort.

We sincerely appreciate the comments and suggestions made in laying the groundwork for this publication when opinions were sought early this year from at least thirty professionals in the field of probation and parole who sifted through drafts of the original questionnaire to produce a comprehensive final product.

The questionnaire was then field-tested by various probation and parole departments in many states to make practical application of the results; adjustments were made, and we were off and running.

We wish to express our gratitude to the hundreds of professionals who supplied information, submitted photos, and encouraged our efforts.

We would like to acknowledge the valuable assistance of

Thomas J. Callahan, Director, New York State Division of Probation
Scotia B. Knouff-Waite, retired probation supervisor
Randy Polisky, President, American Probation and Parole Association

Due in large part to the need to provide a national forum which would address the specific problems and concerns of the field of probation and parole, several attempts were made to establish an association for probation and parole professionals. The first of these was the National Association of Probation Officers, formed in 1907. In 1911 this organization changed its name to the National Probation Association, later to become the National Probation and Parole Association; then, in 1960, due to major policy changes which altered its priorities and focus, this group became known as the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Although U.S. probation officers are represented by their own organization, and many other probation and parole officers also belong to local and regional associations, a significant number of practitioners cited the need for the type of unity in our field that can only be achieved through the establishment of a national body which would have as its primary function the responsibility of addressing the major issues of probation and parole in the United States. Consequently, at the 104th Congress of the American Correctional Association in Houston, Tex., in 1974, members of the ACA Ad Hoc Committee on Probation were charged with developing a constitution for the American Probation and Parole Association. During the next year a small task force completed the work, the constitution was written, and the American Probation and Parole Association was born on August 19, 1975; its mission statement was and still is, "To Promote Progressive Probation and Parole Practices."

Operating during its early years as an independent group, APPA officially became an affiliate member of the ACA in 1979. It has also expanded its efforts by broadening the geographical area it serves to include Canada. The association now serves as the international representative for probation and parole activities and is directed by an executive committee and a board of directors. Regional members of the board of directors are elected, with two members representing each of 17 regions in the U.S. and Canada.

The APPA seeks to achieve its mission through various activities such as: conducting an Annual Institute at the international level; conducting regional workshops and seminars; publishing its international newsletter, Perspectives; providing technical assistance when requested by its members and others from within the public sector; playing an important role in the development and revision of professional standards; and promoting legislative programs beneficial to the field of probation and parole.

One of the most significant findings of an APPA survey of probation and parole professionals was the field's lack of a clear and single philosophy or definition of its goals and responsibilities and the role of the field agent. Aside from perhaps the cutback in field services due to current reductions in government public spending, the above issue appears to be the most crucial one facing our profession today. In looking at the state-of-the-art of probation and parole in North America today, it seems that a clinical, casework ideology is the most pervasive one. This view stresses the treatment-oriented approach and relies to a large degree on psychoanalytic foundations and social work techniques and principles. A differing view is espoused by those field agents who perceive of themselves as mainly peace officers whose major function is to protect the public by closely monitoring the behavior of the offenders they supervise and to initiate revocation procedures at the first sign of any deviation from the conditions of supervision.

These seem to be the two extremes of the continuum. However, a slightly different school of thought submits that probation and parole officers should function as community resource (or case) managers, stressing the notion of probation and parole as an administrative process. Within this framework, the primary responsibilities of field agents are administrative in nature, such as assisting offenders in securing employment, continuing their education, learning a trade, arranging for medical and/or psychological treatment. Yet another view, one that may hold promise for the future but which is still in its embryonic stages of development, is termed the "justice" approach and stresses the need for this profession to honor the theory of criminal law. Being developed as a theory of probation (although it would also seem to have at least some efficacy for parole field services), this framework highlights the justice role of probation officers as officers of the court and suggests that they would monitor court orders for compliance and serve as the mediator between the offender and the court, the offender and the community, and the offender and the victim.

In all probability, no one of the preceding typologies can be considered as accurately representing the theory of probation and parole today or the manner in which all field agents currently view their roles. Furthermore, these typologies should not be considered mutually exclusive; in practice, a particular field agent's role is actually some admixture of two or more of the foregoing philosophies. For the most part, both the personal philosophy of a particular officer and the organizational context in which he/she works determine specifically where in the "treatment vs. law enforcement" continuum they operate and how they interact with the adults and juveniles under their supervision. With this in mind, it is not difficult to see why no single unified theory of probation and parole can be

INTRODUCTION

The roots of probation in North America have generally been traced back to the efforts of John Augustus, a Boston, Mass., shoemaker who is credited with being the father of probation. As early as 1841, Augustus became interested in befriending violators of the law, bailed many of them out of jail, provided them with sympathetic supervision, and often arranged for their lodging and employment. Although he was not an officially designated agent of the court and performed this selfless work as a volunteer without compensation, he is historically regarded as the world's first probation officer, since his actions came close to creating a probation service that included all the elements present in the modern definition of probation. During his 18 years of service to the Boston court system, Augustus bailed "on probation" nearly 2,000 (primarily alcoholic) offenders; of this number, only 10 persons forfeited their bond to the court. His pioneering efforts in the Boston Municipal Court from 1841 to 1859 led to the passage in Massachusetts of the first probation law. In 1900, only five states—Massachusetts, Missouri, Rhode Island, New Jersey, and Vermont—recognized probation legally, but, as we approach the bicentennial birth of John Augustus in 1984, there are 30,000 to 40,000 probation officers in North America, supervising about one and one-half million persons on probation.

Parole as it is known today is based primarily on the mid-19th century workings of the Irish and English penal systems, and specifically on the efforts at that time of men such as Alexander Maconochie and Sir Walter Crofton. The first attempt in North America to parole inmates occurred in the New York State Reformatory in Elmira. That institution's first superintendent, Zebulon R. Brockway, lobbied for and was successful in getting the state legislature to pass an indeterminate sentencing law that allowed for the early, conditional release of prisoners based on their progress and behavior while imprisoned. When the Elmira reformatory was built in 1876 (the same year as the indeterminate sentencing law was passed), it provided for the discretionary parole of inmates.

During the early days of the development of parole, the releasees were not required to submit to parole supervision, but this element of parole was later added. By 1900, some system of parole existed in 20 states; by 1922, 44 states and the U.S. federal system authorized the paroling of inmates; and, by 1944, every state had some system of parole in place. In recent years, however, there has been a move in many of the states to abolish discretionary parole, paroling authorities, and/or parole supervision, and several states have already done away with one or more of these functions. At the present time, no neat, cogent statement can be made concerning the overall effects of such action.

The heart of the efforts and accomplishments of probation and parole lies in the work done by the field agents or officers—the persons who conduct investigations and prepare all types of reports for judges and paroling authorities and who actually perform the day-to-day casework of adults and juveniles placed under their supervision. Probation and parole field services function much like the hub of a spoked wheel, serving as the primary coordinative link in the criminal justice process, and it is only through the effective and efficient use of probation and parole that a truly balanced and integrated corrections system can be attained. However, it must be realized that, as part of these larger systems, probation and parole are negatively affected when changes or imbalances occur in the other components of these systems. If, for example, an increase in funding and personnel occurs at the "front end" of the criminal justice system (i.e., law enforcement agencies), then the other elements of that system will feel the impact; due to the limited and "fixed" amount of bed space available within local jails and other correctional facilities, probation and parole case loads will increase in size. Such was the situation caused when the U.S. federal government, beginning in the 1960s, attempted to control crime in the streets by providing law enforcement agencies with a vast amount of resources without giving concomitant attention to the other parts of the criminal justice system.

Although the ultimate effectiveness of probation and parole has been and in all probability will continue to be, debated for many years, there remains no question that, when appropriate individuals are selected and placed under active probation and parole supervision, the protection of society can be maintained while at the same time realizing relative economic benefits. Due to the current state of the economy, an increasing number of communities have drawn in their purse strings relative to the construction of new correctional facilities; furthermore, although the proverbial "pendulum" has swung, to a large degree, back towards a hard-line philosophy of the incarceration of the criminal adult and juvenile offender, there are still quite vocal and powerful constituencies among the public who have realized that incarceration is not the singular answer for the "protection of the community." Thus, for purposes of both economy and maintaining balance in the system, probation and parole remain extremely important and should be provided with the necessary resources and support to effectively carry out the responsibilities with which they have been charged.

Policy Statement
Adopted 1976

PAROLE

Parole, properly administered and operated with proper regard to the constitutional rights of the parole candidate and the parolee, affords the community a measure of protection which should not be abandoned.

DISCUSSION:

For more than 100 years, the American Correctional Association has recognized parole as an important method of protecting the public safety as well as one through which the successful re-entry of the offender to society is best assured.

This position does not ignore the fact that paroling authorities must be accountable, that parole decisions must be reached fairly and objectively; nor does it overlook the need to implement parole decisions through the provision of resources adequate to maintain the necessary level of supervision and supportive assistance to the offender who is returned to the community.

There is no evidence to support the view that the abolition of parole will reduce crime or that the operation of a parole system cannot be conducted at a level of fairness and equity comparable with that expected of the courts.

The Association therefore urges the states and the Federal Government to address their efforts to strengthening systems of parole in the interest both of meeting the individual needs of the offender and of society at large.

Policy Statement
Adopted 1978

PROBATION

The American Correctional Association endorses probation as a realistic alternative to incarceration as a sentencing disposition by the Courts for juvenile and adult offenders.

DISCUSSION:

Opportunities of assistance can best be afforded by utilizing a sentence of probation and other alternatives as provided by that function if, in fact, the offender does not prove to be a threat of danger to himself or others.

Placement of offenders back into the community allows for access to available treatment programs, continued support for the family through gainful employment, the availability to maintain family ties, academic opportunities, restitution reimbursement, counseling, and community services in lieu of institutionalization. This assistance will promote a socially acceptable lifestyle, while simultaneously monitoring the offender's behavior to assure conformity to the law and the stipulated conditions of release.

A savings to the taxpayer is accomplished when the possibility exists to consider a sentence to probation.

If attempts to accomplish these goals fail, incarceration becomes appropriate.

PREFACE

This new Probation and Parole Directory is a significant accomplishment for the American Correctional Association and for all of those who supplied the valuable and extensive information it contains. Practitioners, researchers, public officials, planners, legislators and county commissioners will find this directory an invaluable source of information. It allows one to examine systems, philosophies and logistics of the majority of probation and parole departments whether they are operated by municipal, county, state or federal governments.

Probation and parole systems are vital components in the correctional continuum. Without them the delicate balance of programs which has been established to help minimize public anxiety about crime control would be damaged appreciably.

Correctional professionals who provide probation and parole services face the constant challenge of multiple roles. They supervise and counsel. They promote jobs for clients and develop community interest to help clients. In addition, they form liaisons with the criminal and juvenile justice agencies. The probation and parole practitioners' respective multifaceted professions form the basis of sound community-based programs that help insure public safety.

As your probation and parole resource book, this directory contains the necessary information to compare the various systems in the United States and Canada. For more detailed information regarding any system do not hesitate to contact your colleague in that particular jurisdiction. If you have any questions or comments about this first edition, please contact us.

Each agency was asked to contribute the necessary information through three separate mailings. Most but not all of the agencies responded. The material is current as of April 1, 1981, and subsequent changes in structure, policy or system are not reflected. Our intention is to revise the Probation and Parole Directory every two years.

FEDERAL PROBATION SYSTEM

The Federal probation officers serve U.S. district courts in 94 judicial districts located throughout the United States. Probation officers conduct presentence investigations on persons convicted in the Federal courts and supervise those placed on probation. In addition, probation officers provide correctional services to persons placed under pretrial diversion supervision by U.S. attorneys and persons paroled from institutions by action of the U.S. Parole Commission or military authorities. Ten pretrial service agencies operate in the Federal court system on a demonstration basis. These agencies provide judicial officers bail investigation and supervision services.

ALABAMA

The Board of Pardons and Paroles considers for parole all adults committed to state correctional institutions. The Board has three full time members who are appointed by the Governor with the approval of the Senate.

BOARD OF PARDONS AND PAROLE
750 Washington Avenue, Suite 312
Montgomery 36130

Sara Cousins Sellers, Chairman
Members: Jack C. Lutkin; John T. Porter

The Board of Pardons and Paroles Service Office is administratively established within the Board of Pardons and Paroles. The office administers twelve area offices, which in turn administer forty branch offices serving the sixty-seven counties in the state. This Board has responsibility for adult probation and parole services.

Each of the 67 counties has a court assigned juvenile court responsibility. Three of the 67—Jefferson, Madison and Montgomery Counties—have Family Courts. These courts are part of a Unified State Court System. The judge of the Juvenile or Family Courts has ultimate authority for all juvenile court functions.

The Department of Youth Services establishes standards for certification of probation officers and subsidizes county probation departments. In effect, Juvenile probation is provided by the state financially (50%) and by the counties (actual manpower.) Juvenile Probation Offices supervise all juveniles placed on probation or aftercare.

BOARD OF PARDONS AND PAROLES (PT)

Robert Wells, Chairman

Members: Whitt Barton; Dr. J. J. Lacey; Jr., Ph.D.; Vigi Moers; Damon Young

Adult probation and parole services are under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections. This department maintains nine correctional facilities and provides parole and probation services to adults. However, upon request from Circuit Court Judge, local Probation officers may be appointed to supervise probationers in the local communities.

The Division of Youth Services (DYS) is a division of the Department of Human Services. DYS operates two juvenile correctional facilities, an Intensive Treatment Unit, and parole services through the Reintegration Services section. Additionally, the Division contracts with over twenty Community-Based programs to provide residential and non-residential alternatives to incarceration. The Division is governed by a seven member board, appointed by the Governor.

Juvenile probation services are under the jurisdiction of the county juvenile courts. Each of the 75 counties maintain autonomous probation and intake offices. Probation officers provide services to juveniles until commitment to DYS. At that time, the youth comes under state jurisdiction, and upon release, parole services are provided by Reintegration Counselors.

The Board of Parole is an autonomous agency primarily responsible for making policy decisions on release dates, terms, and conditions of parole; it reviews all cases for parole. The chairman assigns members to panels composed of three members (including himself) for each correctional insitution. These panels are the actual paroling authority.

BOARD OF PAROLE
340 Capitol Ave
Hartford 06106
(203) 566-4229
Richard J. Reddington, Chairman

Supervision of parolees is provided by the Division of Parole which is administratively under the Department of Correction. Since 1968 Connecticut has had a unified state system of corrections which includes responsibility for all jails, institutions, and parole services. The Parole Division is administered by a Chief of Parole Services.

Adult probationers (over the age of 16) come under the supervision of the Office of Adult Probation which administratively is under the Judicial Department. Probation services are administered by this office.

Adjudicated delinquent children under the age of 16 are committed to the Department of Children & Youth Services for a period of up to two years (may be up to four years if child is designated a serious offender.) The aftercare department located at Long Lane School, the state training school, supervises children in the community following completion of their program at the training school. These children comprise about half of the case load; the other half are adjudicated delinquent children placed directly in a child caring facility as an alternative to the state training school.

On July 1, 1978, Connecticut became the first state in the nation to possess a single unified trial court, centrally administered and entirely state financed. Superior Court Judges are assigned to Juvenile Matters for a period of six months.

The Superior Court-Juvenile Matters exercises exclusive jurisdiction over uncared for, neglected and dependent children under 18 and defective and delinquent children under 16, except for a limited category of Serious Juvenile Offenders subject to mandatory waiver to the criminal docket.

All Juvenile Matters including probation and detention are under the administration of the Director, Family Division, Connecticut Judicial Department.

James T. Morris, Chairman
Donnie Lee, Executive Officer

Adult probation is within the executive branch of government and functions as a unified system under the Georgia Department of Offender Rehabilitation. The Probation Division, directed by the Deputy Commissioner for Community Based Services, consists of 86 probation offices and 12 Restitution/Diversion Centers located throughout the state. The division is managed by 7 district directors, 42 circuit chief probation officers and 12 restitution/diversion center superintendents.

Juvenile intake and probation services are provided through three different organizational forms in Georgia. The Department of Human Resources, Division of Youth Services, provides intake and probation services in 112 counties. In twelve counties, intake and probation services are provided by staff of a county-operated and financed juvenile court. In thirty-five counties, intake and probation responsibilities are shared by both Division of Youth Services staff and county staff.

The Community Services Division/Adult of the Department of Correction handles adult parolees through administration of eight district offices serving 92 counties.

The Community Services Division/Juvenile of the Youth Authority under the Department of Correction makes provision for parole of juveniles. Also under this division is the Juvenile Parole Committee.

Probation services for both adults and juveniles are administered at the county level under the supervision of the Judicial Conference of Indiana, an organization consisting of all of the state's full-time judges. The Judicial Conference is governed by a Board of Directors which is headed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and is served by the Indiana Judicial Center which is the Conference's staff agency. The Department of Correction has no supervisory or administrative authority for probation effective January 1, 1981.

The Board of Parole grants parole to adults committed to state correctional institutions.

BOARD OF PAROLE (PT)
5th Floor Hoover State Office Bldg
Des Moines 50319
(515) 281-4820

Donald L. Olson, Executive Secretary
Walter L. Saur, Chairman
Members: Jacqueline Day, Virginia Harper,
Richard Nazette, William C. Cribbs

The Bureau of Community Correctional Services is administratively established within the Division of Adult Corrections, Department of Social Services. Eight Judicial Districts supervise all adults placed on probation in the state. Adult Parole and Interstate Compact cases are supervised by state parole agents.

Juveniles are committed to the guardianship of the Commissioner of the Iowa Department of Social Services when placed in a state juvenile correctional facility. Juveniles are released (paroled) upon the order of the committing court, and are supervised upon release by the Iowa Department of Social Services Bureau of Childrens Services. The county juvenile court retains jurisdiction of these youth, and the court must order any change in placement.

Juveniles placed on probation are supervised by county Juvenile Probation Officers, who are appointed and administered by the court. The Iowa statute also provides that county Juvenile Probation Officers continue jurisdiction through the court of all youth placed in non-state operated facilities (i.e., foster homes, group homes, nonprofit institutions and hospital facilities). Their casework responsibility is prior, during and following such placements. The legal custody or guardianship of the person are not placed with county Juvenile Probation Departments but legal custody may be placed with an individual Juvenile Probation Officer.

The Division of Parole and Probation, an agency of the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services supervises parolees and probationers and assists them in successfully re-integrating into the community. The Division administers a community service program as an alternative to supervised probation and incarceration, a viable volunteer services program, and provides supervision and investigation services to the courts and parole authorities.

Juveniles placed on aftercare and probation are supervised by the Juvenile Services Administration. The state is geographically broken down into ten regions. Four Eastern regions are supervised by one of Juvenile Services' two Assistant Directors; the remaining six Western regions are supervised by the other Assistant Director. The supervisors for each region administer the services for their regions and are responsible to the above mentioned Assistant Directors.

MINNESOTA

The Minnesota Corrections Board is separate from the Department of Corrections and is the state's full-time paroling authority for adults and youthful offenders (ages 18-25) who have been convicted of crimes committed prior to May 1, 1980. Under Minnesota's sentencing guidelines law, which establishes fixed presumptive terms of imprisonment for offenses committed after May 1, 1980, the Corrections Board has authority to revoke an offender's supervised release. Supervised release begins after the offender has served the term of imprisonment and is equal to the amount of good time earned during his incarceration.

Probation and parole services are provided by the state Department of Corrections and counties in Minnesota in different manners. Counties participating in the state's Community Corrections Act provide probation and parole services. In the remaining counties, the county provides probation and parole services for juveniles and the state Department of Corrections provides probation and parole services for adults.

The Board of Pardons consists of the Governor, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and the Attorney General. The Board may grant pardons and reprieves and commute sentences. The Commissioner of Corrections, or his designee, is secretary to the Board.

NEW JERSEY

The State Parole Board is comprised of a panel for adult, young adult and juvenile cases. Each panel consists of two Associate Members with the chairman sitting as the third member of each panel. The Board is the paroling authority for all offenders committed as adults, young adults or juveniles in the state.

STATE PAROLE BOARD (FT)

Associate Members: Sally G. Carroll; Luis H. Garcia; Leroy J. Jones; Janice S. Mironov; William L. Reid; Gloria E. Soto

The New Jersey State Bureau of Parole is comprised of a Central Office (Administrative), nine district Offices, a Community Residential Facility and Institutional Parole Offices in each of its eight major Correctional Facilities.

The Parole Bureau provides supervision for parolees by making available the necessary assistance, guidance and controls required for community living. Further it provides a residential treatment service for selected parolees designed toward a reorientation of their attitudes and life styles and a subsequent restoration of them to the community.

The Bureau further caries out investigative and supportive services to the work/study release and furlough programs and conducts clemency investigations for the Office of the Governor.

The Institutional Parole Officers provide the necessary link between the institution and the field parole offices in pre-parole planning and resolution of community problems prior to parole.

The Bureau is involved in all parolees age 14 and older who are released from this State's correctional insitutions and parolees from other state jurisdictions accepted under the terms of the interstate compact for the supervision of parolees.

Operation of the probation service statewide is subject to the control and direction of the Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court, although financial support for the system is provided for out of county revenues. The Administrative Office of the courts, through an Assistant Director for Probation, coordinates and supervises the services in behalf of the Judiciary. A single probation department exists in each county to service all courts therein.

NEW YORK

The Board of Parole makes parole release decisions, and decisions with regard to revocation of parole.

BOARD OF PAROLE (FT)
1450 Western Avenue
Albany 12203
(518) 457-8178

Edwin R. Hammock, Chairman

Edward Elwin, Executive Director

Members: William J. Barnwell; Maria Rivera Buchanan; Gerald Burke; Maurice Dean; Irving Greenberg; Billie Holliday; Ada Fisher Jones; Theodore Kirkland; Manuel Parron; Joseph Salo.

The Division of Parole is responsible for the administration of Institutional and Field Parole Services throughout the state for adults. When certain juveniles have been convicted in an adult court for a violent crime, they are supervised by the Division of Parole.

The Division of Probation, in the Executive Department, assists local probation departments in providing probation services through rule, financial support, direct services, training, data collection, and general supervision in three functional areas: intake/diversion, investigation/reports and supervision. The Division also has authority to provide direct probation services to counties in cases where the small size of the probation department would not warrant the supporting services required for an effective probation program.

Juvenile parole services and supervision are the responsibility of the Division for Youth under the Executive Department, specifically the Bureau of Placement and Counseling.

Juvenile probation departments have been established in 13 judicial districts composed of from one to four counties.

Juvenile probation and parole services are provided by Juvenile Correction Services of the Community Services Division of the Social Service Board of North Dakota. The State Youth Authority is most active and takes formal legal custodianship of juveniles committed by the juvenile court. Nearly all children leaving institutional care receive aftercare (parole) services through the community correction programs.

The Parole Board of the Adult Parole Authority within the Division of Parole and Community Services has parole authority over adult felons.

The Adult Parole Authority under the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction supervises probation officers who service 50 of Ohio's 88 counties.

Adjudicated delinquents are placed in the custody of the Ohio Youth Commission. After evaluation they are placed in treatment institutions or directly into a community corrections program. Upon release from either of these placements, the child enters into aftercare status, still under the legal custody of the Youth Commission, until discharge or his/her 21st birthday.

Probation of juveniles is provided by probation officers who are appointed by a Juvenile Court Judge.

The Pardon and Parole Board is the paroling authority for adult offenders. The Board, a separate State agency, recommends paroles to the Governor who has the final decision.

PARDON AND PAROLE BOARD (PT)
3400 North Eastern

(405) 424-3341
Charles C. Chesnut, Chairman
Earl C. Brewer, Administrator
Members: Robert H. Mitchell, Vice Chairman; August E. Mann; Stuart A. Thomas; George W. Wilburn

The Division of Probation and Parole, under the Department of Corrections, provides statewide probation and parole supervision for adults.

Parole for juveniles is granted by an administrative parole board and supervision is provided by the Division of Court Related and Community Services.

Juvenile Probation Services are provided in all but three counties where there are juvenile bureaus. Comanche, Oklahoma and Tulsa counties supervise juveniles placed on probation in their counties.

Administrative supervision of juvenile intake, probation and parole services is through nine district offices.

The Board of Probation and Parole is responsible for parole action and supervision of all adult offenders receiving a sentence of two years or more. Offenders sentenced to a maximum of less than two years are paroled by county courts and supervised by County Probation Departments.

BOARD OF PROBATION AND PAROLE (FT)
PO Box 1661
Harrisburg 17120
Fred W. Jacobs, Chairman
(717) 787-5100
Robert L. Johnson, Executive Director
(717) 787-7037
Hermann Tartler, Board Secretary
(717) 787-6698
Members: Verdell Dean, Esq., William L. Forbes, John H. Jefferson, Walter G. Scheipe

The Board also has authority to supervise probation cases and offenders sentenced to confinement with a maximum of less than two years when paroled and referred to the Board by the County Courts. The State Board has only supervision authority in these special probation and parole cases; County courts retain authority to revoke, terminate or other judicial actions.

Juvenile probation is a function of the counties and their probation officers. There are no institutional juvenile parole boards; the Juvenile Court has complete and original jurisdiction over juvenile offenders. The Juvenile Court Judges Commission provides advisory services to the courts and county probation departments regarding administration and program content for juveniles.

The State Probation, Parole and Pardon Board is divided into four regions with geographical boundries. Two regions have 11 counties and two regions have 12 counties. Each region has a Regional Director responsible for the management of this multi-county area.

TEXAS

The Board of Pardons and Paroles has the constitutional and statutory responsibility for the performance of two broad functions: administering the Statewide Parole and Mandatory Supervision System and investigating and recommending acts of executive clemency to the governor. Parole functions include determining which prisoners are to be recommended to the governor for parole from institutions operated by the Texas Department of Corrections (TDC), establishing the conditions of parole, investigating and supervising all prisoners released on parole, conducting parole and mandatory supervision revocation hearings and recommending to the governor revocation in appropriate cases, establishing necessary parole and mandatory supervision policy within statutory limits and representing the state in dealing with other states under the Interstate Probation and Parole Compact.

To accomplish these functions, the agency provides parole counselors at units from three institutional services parole offices and supervisory officers for parolees and mandatory supervision releasees throughout the state from 37 district field services parole offices, eight of which are also regional offices.

The Adult Probation and Parole section is one of four components of the Division of Corrections. The Division of Corrections is part of the Department of Social Services. Adult Probation and Parole is statutorily responsible for the supervision of all probationers referred by the state courts and all parolees released by the Board of Pardons from the Utah State Prison. In addition, courts refer those who have pled guilty or were found guilty of an offense to Adult Probation and Parole to conduct presentence investigation reports. This office supervises over 8,000 offenders and conducts almost 10,000 presentence investigations per year.

Adult Probation and Parole has 21 offices that service the 29 counties of the state. It was the first statewide probation and parole agency to be accredited by the Commission on Accreditation. The average workload unit for the 96 probation/parole agents is 118.

The Division of Youth Corrections has responsibility for supervison of youth offenders committed to the Division for supervision and treatment in community-based non-secure programs or the State's secure facility (Youth Development Center) and for parole services. The Division contracts with private providers for 300 program slots for non-secure residential and non-residential community-based services for delinquent youth. It is responsible for funding 50% of detention center costs and establishing and monitoring standards for detention. Local counties have responsibility for administering detention centers and holdover facilities.

All probation services are provided as an arm of the statewide juvenile court system. The juvenile court administrator appoints five district directors of court services, with the approval of the judges in that district, who then appoint probation staff for both intake and field services.

Adult probation and parole services come under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections, Agency of Human Services. Four districts and seven sub-offices of the Division of Probation and Parole supervise all adults placed on probation and parole.

With the closing of Vermont's only institution for delinquents in 1978, there is no longer any functional parole system. There are committed children in the custody of the Department of Social & Rehabilitation Services (SRS) and children on probation. Children in custody are reflected under juvenile parole/aftercare in this directory as they are the groups of children who go into placements and eventually return to their communities where supervision in the responsibility of the caseworker.

Juvenile probation services, under SRS and the Social Services Division, are operated by twelve district offices responsible as well for the supervision of delinquents who are in the State's custody.

CANADA
NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Canada's federal parole system operates under the authority of two agencies reporting to the Solicitor General of Canada: the National Parole Board and the Correctional Service of Canada.

The National Parole Board (NPB) has exclusive jurisdiction and absolute discretion, under the Parole Act, to grant, deny or revoke day and full parole for inmates incarcerated for federal offences in both federal and provincial institutions, except inmates sentenced to provincial institutions (less than two years) in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. These provinces have established their own paroling authorities for these purposes under a 1977 amendment to the Parole Act enabling them to do so.

The Correctional Service of Canada (CSC), on the other hand, is responsible for preparing and submitting to the NPB the cases of inmates eligible for conditional release, and for supervising and assisting inmates released by the NPB. It has exercised these responsibilities, in addition to those related to the care and custody of federal inmates, since its creation in 1977 out of the former Canadian Penitentiary Service and the former National Parole Service.

Both organizations are headquartered in the Capital, Ottawa, but operate in a largely decentralized manner through a network of regional offices which they respectively maintain in the five major geographic areas of the country.

Most parole decisions are made by the regional divisions of the NPB. Similarly, case preparation and supervision services are delivered through the regional arms of the CSC.

However, policy development and formulation, in both organizations, is coordinated at the headquarters level to ensure consistency and to maintain the national character of the parole system.

MANITOBA

The major functions of the Manitoba Probation Service are to conduct predisposition investigations and supervise offenders. Probation services are available in all juvenile and adult courts in Manitoba.

There are 16 Probation field teams, each headed by a senior probation officer and comprised of from five to eleven Probation Officers with clerical support staff. Outside Winnipeg, teams are located in seven areas with seven sub-offices. Seven part time staff reside on Indian Reservations throughout the Province. In Winnipeg, there are seven district teams serving specific geographical areas and two special purpose teams. These field offices are responsible for all direct service functions within their geographic areas.

Probation provides three types of service to adult offenders: Pre-sentence reports; probation supervision; parole services (the National Parole Service contracts with the Probation Service to provide parole supervision in areas where there is no parole officer or private aftercare agency, or when probation is to follow the sentence on which parole is granted.)

Police departments throughout the Province refer juvenile cases to the Probation Service who provide the following: intake screening; court services; probation services; juvenile aftercare.

NEW BRUNSWICK

The differentiation between the federal and provincial adult criminal jurisdictions is the length of sentence. Persons sentenced to two years or more serve their sentences in federal penitentiaries. A separate Federal Service, the Correctional Services of Canada, provides parole supervision when these offenders are released.

In certain cases, the Federal Service also provides supervision to offenders sentenced to less than two years in Provincial Correctional Institutions. The province also operates a Temporary Absence Program for employment, work and other humanitarian purposes for adult criminal offenders. The same program operates for juvenile offenders under the title of Placement Program.

ONTARIO

The Ministry of Correctional Services is divided into two Divisions: Community Programs and Institutional Programs. The Community Programs Division is composed of three Branches: The Ontario Probation & Parole Service; Community Resource Centres, and Community Programs Support Services. The Probation & Parole Service is responsible for all offenders who have been placed on probation supervision by the Court as well as all inmates released from provincial correctional facilities under the authority of the Ontario Parole Board. The Probation & Parole Service may also be involved in the supervision of incarcerates released on temporary absence or serving intermittent sentences.

The Probation & Parole Services has been localized into nine Regions, supervised by a Regional Administrator, aided by one or more Area Managers. The Ministry is in the process of implementing a strategic planning process, establishing themes and priorities to be planned and developed at the field level. As a result, the Probation & Parole Service has been involved in a significant expansion of programs and services in recent years, focusing on the development and utilization of alternatives to incarceration and the meeting of client's special needs. In addition, the participation of the community in this process has been actively encouraged and has resulted in increased privatization of services.

Probation services are provided by the Probation and Family Court Services Division of the Department of Justice and operate in support to both Provincial and Supreme Courts. Probation offices are situated in three locations, two of which maintain satellite offices. Probation Officers' responsibilities include presentence investigations/reports, probation supervision, the Temporary Absence Program and community related activities. (Through the Temporary Absence Program, sentenced inmates can apply at any time for temporary absence; however, they are not usually granted leave until one third of their full sentence has been served. Each application is investigated by a probation officer who usually contacts the sentencing judge, the police, and other community sources.)

Juvenile probation services are provided by the Department of Social Services.

QUEBEC

Quebec Probation Service supervises defendants subject to conditions imposed by the court and prepares pre-sentence investigations for the court. In addition, it prepares pre-release reports and supervises paroles released by the Provincial Parole Board which was created in 1979.

Policy Statement

COMMUNITY CORRECTIONS

As a relatively new process to effective involvement in the Justice System, the American Correctional Association supports Community Corrections. We endorse those efficient and effective programs already in operation as models of the system. Legislative action and appropriate funding allocation at the state and local level is encouraged where Community Corrections does not exist. This includes private, local, and state government support for correctional agencies and halfway houses.

Continued funding and support for those already established cost-effective Community Correction facilities is urged by this Association.

DISCUSSION:

Community Corrections is a viable alternative which requires diversified programs capable of meeting all the needs of varied type offenders in a non-institutional type setting, emphasizing due process and the development of service delivery systems to divert the maximum number of offenders.

Provisions through Community Corrections allows more effective and economical reintegration of offenders into normal community roles for a great number of juvenile and adult offenders; a more selective use of institutionalization by the Court (reserving this sentencing alternative for dangerous and persistent offenders); and an increased opportunity for offenders to provide family support.

Gains to local and state government are recognized in a greater fiscal savings by provisions for the individual to contribute to the tax base through his continued employment. Additionally, already existing services established in the community can be utilized by easily accessible referrals from the Community Corrections staff.

STANDARDS FOR ADULT CORRECTIONAL SERVICES

2nd Edition Revised

After an extensive program of field testing and revision, the American Correctional Association, in conjunction with practitioners in the field, has completed the second editions of the Standards for Adult Correctional Services.

These manuals reflect the new experience, knowledge and expertise to help correctional officials continue to upgrade and improve their operations. They are the cornerstone of the accreditation process and have been adopted by the Commission on Accreditation for Corrections for use in that process.

ACA CORRECTIONAL STANDARDS PROGRAM

Adult Parole Authorities $7.50

Outlines minimal standards and the measurement of acceptable performance concerning the role and purpose of parole authorities.

Adult Probation and Parole Field Services $7.50

Offers practical, yet progressive objectives, definitions and guidelines on services to enable the offender to live successfully and lawfully in the community.

Adult Community Residential Services $7.50

Provides a national framework to present the needs and concerns of community residential services to public officials, funding agencies and the public.

Adult Correctional Institutions $10.00

Coming at a time when the role and function of the prison system faces many challenges, the ACI standards serve as a catalyst for the consistent improvement of services and conditions within institutions.

Adult Local Detention Facilities $10.00

Provides correctional administrators with a tool for assessing and evaluating the performance and overall adequacy of their facilities.

Causes, Preventive Measures and Methods of Controlling Riots & Disturbances in Correctional Institutions $8.00

In recent decades an alarming increase in the number, extent and destructiveness of riots and disturbances has occurred in correctional institutions. The tragic irony in this increase is the fact that many of these disturbances could have been prevented given the present level of knowledge and experience in corrections.

This updated and extensively revised edition of Riots and Disturbances in Correctional Institutions provides a summary of the available information on the causes, preventive measures and methods of controlling these events. It's organized to encourage correctional administrators and their staff to develop formal riot control plans in order to reduce the number of riots and disturbances and to prevent costly overreactions to minor occurrences.
